Members interested in giving this information to guest speakers or others must do so individually. All members are expected to be discreet with sensitive information shared at the meetings.

PROCEDURES FOR CASH MANAGEMENT & REPORTING SCHOOL ASSOCIATED ORGANIZATIONS

The following is a suggested list of internal accounting controls for school associated organizations in order to provide adequate oversight, supervision and control of funds. The use of these internal controls over the cash functions will help ensure accuracy and safety.

Bank Reconciliation

- The bank account should be reconciled by the treasurer and reviewed by someone independent of the depositing or check writing responsibilities for that account.
- Bank reconciliations should be done monthly. All discrepancies should be immediately investigated and records adjusted accordingly.

Cash Disbursements

- Never write checks payable to “cash”.
- Never sign a blank check.
- All disbursements should be made with a written check from the organization’s account as this is the best evidence of payment.
- Checks shall be written in numerical order (voided checks shall be kept to account for sequence of checks.)
- Two people should sign all checks. One of these individuals should be independent of the recordkeeping function.
- Sales slips, receipts or invoices must be provided to support all expenditures.

Cash Receipts

- All checks should be made payable to the organization. Checks should NEVER be made payable to an individual.
- Limit the number of people handling cash as much as possible at fundraising functions.
- Two persons (adults) should count cash from fundraisers immediately after an event.

- If practical, a pre-numbered cash receipt book should be used for all cash receipts with the payor receiving a copy of the receipt.
- Deposit slips should be reconciled to cash receipts on a monthly basis.
- Bank deposits should be made on a regular, timely basis.
- All checks received should be immediately restrictively endorsed as this prohibits further transfer of a check. The endorsement should read For Deposit Only, the bank name, and account number.

Reporting to Membership

- The treasurer should present a financial report at each membership meeting providing year-to-date receipt and expenditure activity and the current bank balance.

Insurance

- Bonding insurance should be obtained to protect the group in the event of embezzlement.

Audit

- An annual audit should be performed by someone who is independent from day-to-day financial activities.
- If an auditing committee is charged to conduct the audit, its members should not include the signers on the bank account.
- Upon completion, the results of the audit should be reported to the executive board.
